

Name: Amir Charaf
Sample number: 52911022

Facility: Neurazon, LLC, LAVAL CANADA

- This functional health assessment focuses on identifying imbalances in neuronal building blocks, vitamins, and minerals in both the brain and body, while also assessing the overall health of the blood-brain barrier.
- It helps determine which vitamins and minerals the brain and body are not absorbing properly.
- This is not a typical mineral or vitamin test performed through bloodwork; rather, it is a neuronal growth factors analysis that evaluates the integrity of the blood-brain barrier and the general health of the body, aiming for optimal brain health.
- Based on the results, we will recommend the necessary supplements to enhance the absorption of neuronal growth factors and support blood-brain barrier function.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Recommendations: The provided guidance includes safe, non-drug, natural treatments intended to support the child's development. These recommendations are not a replacement for professional rehabilitation and training sessions and should always be followed under the supervision of a qualified specialist. Progress and improvement depend on the individual child, the underlying causes, and their response to the interventions, with recommendations adjusted based on regular evaluations every three months. If any signs of an allergic reaction occur, discontinue the treatment immediately and consult with a healthcare provider to modify the treatment plan accordingly.

Reevaluation: A reevaluation is necessary after the specified duration to reassess development using the AI model or as recommended by the professional team.

Next Steps: Begin the second phase of the protocol after the timeframe indicated in the treatment plan.

This assessment was developed and its performance validated using the AI model of NEURAZON, as detailed in the attached report. Based on the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) guidelines, this method does not require clearance or approval, and none has been pursued. This test is intended for clinical purposes. All results are thoroughly reviewed, interpreted, and reported by our team of scientific and medical experts. Please refer to the attached report for comprehensive details.
